

Grier Stanley

Grier Stanley, a college senior, is no stranger to leadership in many forms. Her resume reads: camp director, teacher, youth coach, peer counselor, resident assistant. In her leadership roles at the University of Rhode Island and elsewhere, Grier has influenced many peers to become involved in their community.

As a Resident Assistant (RA), Grier has been a visible and recognized student leader. After serving three years as a RA, she now serves as president of the RA board at URI. In that role, she has led extraordinary efforts: raising funds for a Habitat for Humanity House for Hurricane Katrina victims; adopting needy South County families at the holidays; sponsoring a doctor in Africa. In addition, even before she came to URI, Grier was involved in community service for many years, helping the mentally ill and handicapped.

Because of her visibility as a leader and role model, Grier has inspired many fellow students to be responsible members of their community and take up the tradition of servant leadership.

Grier studies Human Development and Family Studies, with a minor in Psychology. She will graduate in May 2007 with a 4.0 GPA, and plans to pursue a career in social work.
